COMPLIANCE STATEMENT

Norms and standards are constantly updated to newer versions.

Fike Europe is striving to be compliant to the newest norms and standards. Therefore we are in the process of updating our Type Approvals to meet these newest versions. Due to the fact that this process is very time consuming, Fike Europe conducted an examination to determine if there certified products are subjected the changes made in the EN1127-1:2011 and the EN13463-1:2009.

This examination showed that none of Fike Europe's certified products are subject to any of the essential modifications.

Our products were approved according the Technical Comity Document CEN/TC305, which later evolved in the EN14979:2006 norm. There were no essential modification between the technical document and the norm, so also here the design can be considered to be approved according the standard.

Therefore we confirm that the used norms are not harmonized anymore but that the conformity of the materials is not influenced by the Essential Modifications to these standards and norms.
